Practice Greenhealth recognizes Mason Health with 2022 Partner for Change Environmental Excellence Award

In recognition of its achievement and innovation in health care sustainability, Mason Health received the 2022 Partner for Change Environmental Excellence Award from Practice Greenhealth, the nation's leading organization dedicated to environmental sustainability in health care. This is the second year that Mason Health has earned an Environmental Excellence Award.

The award recognizes Mason Health's ongoing commitment to improving environmental performance and our efforts to build sustainability into the operations and culture of our institution.

"In a shifting health care landscape, a focus on sustainability can help build resilience while better protecting the health of patients and the community," said Gary Cohen, Practice Greenhealth founder. "Mason Health demonstrates the kind of leadership, innovation, and performance that can drive the entire health sector toward more environmentally responsible practices."

Within two years of joining the organization, the District has already emerged as a leader in sustainability efforts in the region – in May, Mason Health was recognized at the national health care. In 2022, Mason Health also earned its first ENERGYSTAR rating.

"I am thrilled we have received this second award," said Mason Health Chief Development & Communications Officer Jennifer Capps. "I am really stoked about all of the work that our departments are doing."
